From the President

The October meeting was a photo shoot held at Pinicon Ridge Park on a beautiful fall afternoon. We started out at the wildlife sanctuary photographing a small herd of elk that didn't appear too interested in all the people clicking away with their cameras. The elk were sitting in the shade under a tree, forcing a tricky shot with the subject in a shadow and the sun partially backlighting the scene.

Winter Trail – Jim Zelle

From the wildlife sanctuary, we moved on to the observation tower for a view overlooking the park. The colors this year were only average, so the shots we took from the tower probably won't win any fall color contests, but it still was an interesting place to shoot from with the fencing obstructing our view and the tower moving slightly with the wind. After the tower we moved on to the Woodpecker Hill trail, which I felt was the most colorful area of the park. Overall, I felt we had a fun afternoon. Hopefully everyone had a few shots that were keepers.

For the November meeting on the 20th we'd like everyone who participated in the photo shoot to share their photos. If you weren't able to make it, bring along any other fall color photos that you would like to share.

Also at the November meeting I'd like to discuss our finances. We only have 33 club members at the moment – down from last year's total of 45. Additionally, as anticipated, Rockwell has decided not to subsidize the recreation clubs this year. Currently in our treasury we have a total of $635, of which $100 is in PhotoPro gift certificates. Our 2003 Photo Contest distributed a total of $430 in prize money, so if we apply the gift certificates towards next year annual contest and award the same number of prizes, we're only left with $205 available for equipment purchases. During the past year we've discussed purchasing additional display panels or a CD-RW drive for the film scanner setup in the darkroom. The one shot contest would also require some funding if we're going to do it the way it has been done in the past. Obviously we aren't going to be able to do everything this year, so we need to decide what are priorities are.

If you won't be able to make this month's meeting, but would like to have some input into our spending for the year, let me know. That's it for this month. I'll see you on the 20th.
